

A large population of students are often unmotivated to do coursework, caused by constant distractions and disinterest in the course. This leads to missed due dates and drops in course grades.